

RIVERVIEW HIGH SCHOOL

Career exposure to positions such as business owner, attorney, diplomat, financial planner,
Interest areas including business, foreign languages and cultures, leadership and travel
Authentic activities designed to help students to compete with global challenges

In the Civil & International Learning Community, students explore and identify the myriad leadership and career options within our city, county, state and federal government structures, including military and Foreign Service. The C.I.A. learning community offers its students opportunities to travel here at home and abroad. Our students become people-oriented citizens active in local and global communities and as such, are encouraged to become global thinkers. C.I.A. pathways include International Business, Entrepreneurship, Military & Government, and International Affairs.

Highlights of the C.I.A. include:

- Courses for students who are interested in internationalism, multiculturalism, international business, politics and foreign affairs, international trade and economic development, marketing and entrepreneurship, business ownership, banking and finance
- Core subjects that focus on cultural development and human interaction with special emphasis on bilingualism, and global problem solving
- Content and activities that appeal to students who are interested in traveling overseas, current events, international affairs, multicultural literature, government, law, foreign languages, philosophy and religion

To be in the Adventure pathway, a community where students learn about military government, history and citizenship, students must sign up for the Junior Reserve Officer's Training Corps (J.R.O.T.C.). Highlights include:

- Military skills
- Military history & citizenship
- Practical leadership training
- Marksmanship
- Adventure training
- White water rafting
- Rapelling
- Canoeing
